"British advance brought the Germans to their knees," says
Gen. Foch.

How that bit of news must tickle the kaiser.

Canada expects to get a share of war indemnities. Sir Robert Borden to be Dominion representative at the peace conference

And so by the irony of fate,
the Huns will have to re-pay our Victory Bonds. So buy Victory Bonds now and the Huns pay for them later.

The Hiking Club is the newest organization in Calgary. It has been formed to forwarding walking. Walkers are invited.

The Calgary street railway men have joined the organization—
so have hundreds of the citizens.

"Municipal street railway men walked out at 11 o'clock," says
Saturday's Calgary Herald.

And after that hour the citizens walked about. War time economy on both sides, and one is less likely to catch a flu-crore.

Germany has for ever lost her U-boat bases at Zeebrugge and Ostend.

These were the centres from which the Huns have been doing their base-less shipping destruction for the past four years.

"Huns scuttling out of Belgium faster than they marched in,"
says a news heading.

When they marched in the fatherland was at their back.
They are marching out with the British bayonets at their hinder end.

Germany's reply to Wilson
shows anxiety for peace.

But its full of Hun camouflage when the Allied armies are at the German border the anxiety
will begin to have right ring to it

The Calgary strikers have a very curious idea of democracy when they tie up a whole city in favor of one man. Wouldn't that get your goat?

The Spanish Flu

Up to date, Chinook has reported but three cases of the flu.
None of the cases, however, are proving of the same type that has prevailed in the east, but rather to our friend the grippie, that was so prevalent some few years ago. Of course, even this type of flu is not to be trifled with, and its symptoms and progress are to be watched just as carefully and precaution taken as if it was the same fatal malady that is now raging in the east.

The village board of health and the medical health officer are taking every precaution in preventing the malady from spreading, and they are relying upon all good citizens in assisting them in their efforts. Any carelessness may cause the epidemic
to spread all through the village and beyond. At present there is no cause for alarm, as the cases in town are very mild, and are put under "modified quarantine"
only, which requires "that the patient shall be isolated therein
from the other inmates, if possible in a separate room, until released from modified quarantine."

The local board of health has been notified by the provincial board of health as follows: "How many trained nurses available for work in your town? Wire number. Would strongly recommend you making contract with them,
it to be operative your option in case emergency plan of nursing being sent you."

INFLUENZA DON'TS

Don't get scared.
Don't discuss symptoms.
Don't talk about all the people
you know who have it.
Don't make your family miserable by trying on them all the

Don't imagine you are a victim
if you sneeze.
Two sneezes do not necessarily make one case of Spanish flu.
Don't get cold feet, figuratively
or literally.
Don't neglect a cold you may have.
Don't let fear and imagination
get a hold on you.
They are more fatal than the real thing.

The Unchanged Kaiser

GERMANY'S answer to Wilson's note is just what might have been expected, and the longer the only terms of the Allies is impressed upon the kaiser, that much longer will the Huns quibble over this term and that term in any of the Allies' peace notes. Before the United States entered into the war,
didn't Wilson have enough experience of the Huns' lying question and twisting phrases in all questions submitted by the U.S. As then, so now, Germany's one desire is to go on talking. She is fighting for time, and the sooner she get the only safe terms of peace—unconditional surrender
—the Allies can afford to offer,
Germany will keep on talking and quibbling for a year, and longer, to get her ends. There can be no quibbling and miscon-
struing terms in "Unconditional Surrender."

The Daily Telegraph (London, Eng.) aptly states the case: "It is time an end be put to negotiations, which, so long as Germany is in her present mood, can lead to no results. We have no other alternative than to press on with the utmost of our power and beware of being beguiled into a discussion of details obviously raised to falsify the main issues."
"We dare not consent to a suspension of hostilities unless we can obtain in October, the terms we shall dictate before July to an enemy who is broken and beaten to his knees."

Of the $500,000,000 desired
through the Victory Loan, this year's war bill will be equal to four-fifths of it.

The war has cost Canada one billion dollars.

The war is not yet ended.

Some Confusion Over Exemption

Some confusion has been caused by a misapprehension of the terms of a recent proclamation addressed to "Men Exempted as Soldiers" to the effect that men so exempted who wish for an exemption should communicate with the registrar in their districts. It has been assumed by some persons that this applies to soldiers who are on harvest leave.
Many letters have been addressed to the authorities on the subject, and it is feared that some of these men, acting under this impression, may absent themselves from their regiments when their leave is expired.

This impression is unfounded.
The proclamation applies exclusively to men who have never been ordered to report at the depots, but have been exempted as soldiers. It does not apply to men who have reported at the depots, and have been granted
leave on furlough. "Harvest leave," as it is generally termed, expires on Oct. 31st. Men who do not return at the expiration of their leave will be treated as deserters.

gary Herald.

A Fight for Life

It has been light or die for many of us in the past and the lucky people are those who have suffered, but who are now well because they heeded nature's warning signal in time to correct their trouble with that wonderful new discovery of Dr. Pierce's called "As-a-uria." You should promptly heed those warnings, some of which are dizzy spells, headache, irregularity of the urine or the painful twinges of rheumatism, sciatica or lumbago. To delay may make possible the dangerous forms of kidney disease, such as diabetes or stone in bladder.

Who overcome those distressing conditions take plenty of exercise in the open air, avoid a heavy meat diet, drink freely of water and at each meal take Asuria (double strength). You will, in short time, find that you are one of the firm adherents of Asuria.

Hamilton, Ont.—"For kidney ailments I have never known any medicine to equal Asuria. When I started to take it was very miserable with lame back, pain in the cords of my neck and shoulders and all over my body. The doctor said I was colored and offensive. All of these conditions have left me well and healthy. After one week's use of Asuria and I consider it to be the greatest of all kidney medicines."—Mrs. JENNIE CLARK, 70 Queen St. S., Toronto.

"My husband suffered severely with pain in his back for three or four weeks. He commenced to take Asuria and in three or four days he not only looked better, but remarked that his back felt much better and now he says that his pain has all gone. It was with pleasure that we recommend Asuria."—Mrs. MARY BRYAN, 54 Sinton St., Toronto.

It looked as if the person outside had been knocking for some time, and the landlord's curiosity might have been excited had he heard that his guest had barricaded his door. Dressing by gaslight, he found breakfast ready when he went down, and day broke soon after the meal was over. Foster paid his bill and set off with Pete, taking the main road, until they reached the end of the village, where some men were working in a colliery bank. Pete indicated a lane that branched off to the right. "You're our way, but I'm thinking we'll gang straight on for a bit," they followed the main road until the men were out of sight, and then, crossing some fields, they entered the lane they had passed, which rose steadily to higher ground. After a time they found another road running straight towards the west. This was the old military road, made when the Romans built the Pic's wall, and long afterwards repaired by General Vaux, who tried to move his troops across to intercept Prince Charles's march. Foster sat down for a few minutes at the corner and looked back at the distant chimney stacks and trails of smoke.

The railway and the road by which the main traffic went, followed the valley of the Tyne, but the military road kept to the edge of the high moors. He gathered from the map that it was, for the most part, lonely, and thought Graham would expect him to go by train; but Foster probably knew enough about him to anticipate his making for Liddesdale, and as there were not many trains running north from Hexham, would reckon on his travelling by Carlisle. This was so, so that he was being looked for, his pursuers would now be in front of him instead of behind, and he saw some advantage in keeping them there. Still he must not lose much time in finding Daly; for one thing, it would be awkward if the police arrested him while he kept the checks in his pocket. For all that, he meant to visit the Garth, tell Alice he had been successful, and if she had news of Lawrence, and try to overcome Featherstone's suspicions. Then, if Lawrence had not written yet, he must go back to Canada as soon as he had seen Daly.

Beyond this Foster's plans were vague; he did not know, for example, how he could force Daly to keep Lawrence's secret without promising to withhold evidence that would bring the man to justice. But he might find a way and was tired of puzzling about the matter. In a sense, he had taken a ridiculous line from the beginning and perhaps involved himself in needless difficulties. His partner, however, must be protected, and in the meantime he had two objects: to avoid the police and Graham.

"Perhaps we had better keep the military road until we strike the North Tyne," he said to Pete. "Then, if nothing turns up to prevent it, we might risk stopping for the night at Hexham."

Having the day before them, they set off at a leisurely pace. The weather was cold but still, and bright sun.

What Women Want to Know

Some Queries and Answers Regarding Conservation of Food
Marguerite. Have the restrictions on bacon proved themselves to be worth while? A natural enough question, now that they have been lifted, Marguerite. As figures are the most convincing testimony of any digest these and then let us know what you think about it.

The net exports of pork have been increased by 125,000,000 pounds per annum, an increase of 571 per cent. over a five year pre-war average. The net exports from Canada of beef have been increased by nearly 75,000,000 pounds per annum, an increase of 675 per cent. over the average net exports for 1910-1914. Do you think it worth while?

There are some other figures which might interest you showing what has been accomplished as a result of the food board's restrictions and propaganda. It is estimated that the Canada exported at least from 25 to 39 per cent. more wheat during the last twelve months than could have been exported had it not been for the efforts of conservation and organization of this country's food resources. Canada is now saving sugar at the rate of more than 100,000 tons annually. Very large quantities of edible fats are also being released out of normal consumption for export.

Indignant. You seem to have the popular but mistaken view of what cold storage is. As a matter of fact, cold storage is like a great national cellar which we could scarcely do without. There may be quantities of food lying in cold storage that we in Canada have no right to lay our hands on, because it has been bought by the allies. It is easy to be critical when we do not know the full facts of the situation, but when the question is cold storage, better reserve judgment until you have more information.

Curious. Yes, Europe will undoubtedly feel the cutting off of the Russian wheat supply. It used to be a tremendous factor in trade relations. Possessing more latent agricultural resources, perhaps, than any like area in the world, Russia has 288,000,000 acres of excellent wheat land. Even at our present standard production on the North American continent, Russia alone could produce more wheat than is raised on the entire globe today. She "could," but she does not, because her people are demoralized. Not one-third of the Russian crops have been put in this year. This is all the more reason why we should concentrate on raising and conserving grain. Now that the farmer's thoughts are turning to seedling for next year, his wife and daughter can give him a timely word of advice to make preparations for increased grain output.

Ruby. No sugar can legally be used in the home for making candy for private consumption.
D. L. Report the breach of the eating house regulations to the municipal police immediately and they will take action. The Canada food board is closing up hotels and restaurants every day for breaking the food laws. No sugar bowl may not be left on the table. Only one piece of butter should be served, although a second may be procured upon request. Yes, it is all right to serve bacon now at any hour. The restrictions on wheat remain unchanged.

Home Baker. It is not at all necessary to have a white bread at this stage of affairs. The darker your bread the better you should feel about it. Use yellow or blended corn flour and cornmeal, oatmeal, and oatmeal. And don't forget to use plenty of mashed potatoes in your bread. One woman who makes the most delicious bread never fails to put in some left-over porridge and a goodly proportion of leftover potatoes. She does not waste a scrap. She is a real food conservator and it would be hard to find better bread than she makes, anywhere.

Rosa. I would suggest that your best plan for the harvest period would be to volunteer to help in the kitchen on some neighboring farm. Not being over strong for outdoor work, you could learn to love the children and do the cooking, so that the farmer's wife, who really knows more about the kitchen work than you, would be able to give her husband practical help during his busiest season. A lot depends on this year's harvest and you could find more useful work than this, for the next month or two at any rate.

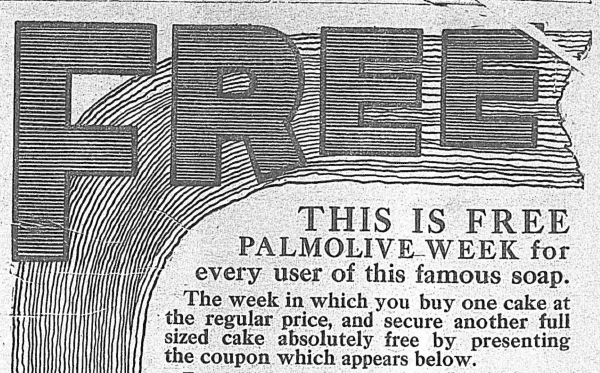

Farmer's Wife. In experimenting with substitutes in bread-making you discovered the value of the ordinary mashed potatoes left over from the dinner table. You cannot find anything better and they cost you little, for almost every farmer has an all-year-round supply of potatoes. A successful bread recipe, using potatoes, is as follows:

1 1/2 cups flour.
1 1/4 cups mashed potatoes (packed solid).
1 1/2 teaspoons salt.
3/4 to 1 1/2 yeast cake in 2 tablespoons water.

Cool the potatoes to lukewarm and add yeast, salt and 1/2 cup flour. Mix and allow to rise until very light. Add the remaining flour. Knead well. Have the dough very stiff. Lower and allow to rise until double in bulk. Shape into a loaf. Allow to rise until more than double in bulk and bake.

Enquirer. Yes, community housekeeping has been tried out in one small town in New Brunswick where about 27 families have found a system which is now being put in order. The banker's wife does the washing for several families; the station agent's wife does the darning and so on through the list of professions. Each housekeeper does what she likes best to do and the good work is a fine opportunity for public service in this way.

A shoemaker in Chicago has a card in his window, reading: "Any man, woman or child can have fits in this shop."

Carrier and Passenger Pigeons

"Is the carrier pigeon a descendant of the passenger pigeon?" a subscriber has asked a correspondent. The passenger pigeon of America, it may be said in answer, has become extinct. It was of a different breed from the homing or carrier pigeon, which is an Old World pigeon and has been used in the East for many centuries for conveying messages.

The last surviving passenger pigeon, it may be worth while to note, is said to have died in captivity in 1914 in the Zoological Gardens in Cincinnati.

Goatee Coming Back in U.S.

In the Civil War period it was the military thing, in the United States, for men to wear a small pointed tuft of hair just under the center of the lower lip. The Third Napoleon was credited with the invention of the imperial, as the French called it, and those sufficiently interested may see it in nearly all the later portraits. On the western side of the Atlantic it was known as a "goatee." Strange to say, the style is reappearing in the United States cantonnments, under the alias of "doe," which is slang for a useless and insignificant little thing.

German papers are now discussing the difficulties of home defence.

Home defence! Why that was the very thing never dreamed of by the Kaiser, when he entered this war. He was to have been the ruler of the world!

The Huns are at last getting onto the fact that the Allied armies will soon be knocking at their back door—and walking in.

An alarming report is in circulation, and has been officially confirmed, that the whole of the British army on the west front have the grip.

Sure! They have the British bull-dog grip on the terrorized German armies.

In Thursday's Calgary Herald appears a large photograph of all the employees of the local branch of the Bank of Commerce after they had been equipped with masks.

The group resembles one of Cuddy's well masked bank safe blowers round-ups.

"Reichstag must have peace or war say," says a news heading.

That relates only to any future wars Germany wants to dabble in. But in the present war the Allies will have the say, and they will see about the Huns' chance to decide for war again.

Sir Thomas White, financial minister of Canada, was the chief speaker in a day of inspiration for the Victory Loan workers of southern Alberta who were assembled in convention at Calgary on Friday, October 18. The meeting, which was presided over by Mr. Wm. Toole, chairman of the Southern Alberta executive, was composed of newspaper editors and workers in the Victory Loan campaign from all points in southern Alberta.

At 12:30 the visitors were entertained to luncheon and a musical programme in the Palliser Hotel, and at 2 o'clock Mr. Toole called the business meeting to order, when it was most interestingly addressed by Mr. J. H. Woods editor of the Calgary Herald until the arrival of Sir Thomas White at 2:30.

Sir Thomas Speaks
In opening his address, the minister, in view of the fact that he was addressing so many members of the fourth estate present, referred to his early days spent on the press in Toronto. "It is a special pleasure, therefore, for me to meet the gentlemen of the press here," he said, "and I desire on this occasion to make a public acknowledgment to them for the splendid support and assistance I have received ever since I became finance minister. I would be lacking in courtesy and gratitude if I did not express my thanks especially to J. H. Woods, of the Calgary Herald, who last year was president of the Canadian People's Association, and who did splendid and magnificent work as chairman of the press publicity committee of the Victory Loan."

"It would be impossible for a minister of finance to carry on the financial duties of the Dominion of Canada in time of war, and in such a war as this," said Sir Thomas, "unless he had the loyal and practically undivided support of the entire community and unless he were able to place on the broad shoulders of organizers the greater part of the work and responsibility connected with a Victory Loan," and added: "It is my satisfaction to those who are engaged in this work to realize that what you are doing greatly assists me in making it possible to carry on what would otherwise be impossible for the shoulders of one to bear; you take that satisfaction in full measure."

Relates Difficulties
Sir Thomas reviewed at some length the difficulties that had arisen in connection with the finances of the country. It was, he said, in July last year that, owing to the entry of the United States into the war and the closing of the New York market, that Great Britain found herself unable to continue her purchases in Canada of Canadian products by reason of lack of funds, and he referred to the urgent messages he had received from Premier Lloyd George and the Hon. Law, most urgent messages asking that credit should be furnished for purchasing products required by Great Britain in Canada. Canada had been asked to furnish last year $122,000,000.

"That," said the minister, "necessitated an entire re-arrangement of our plan of finance, and he spoke of the co-operative effort that had been made in connection with the Victory Loan of 1917, having a great tribute to the 11,000 or 12,000 men, remembering that any of the people had been unprecedented in securing $117,000,000 from 800,000 subscribers.

"Up to 1914 the Dominion of Canada," he said, "had never floated a loan within its own borders of $1,000,000, yet after four years of war, by organized effort, the fine spirit and patriotism of the people in Canada, raised the enormous sum of $400,000,000 for the purpose I have mentioned. I think that was probably the greatest effort in the light of relative population, that any of the Allied countries have made since the commencement of the war."

Would Exceed Efforts
Continuing, Sir Thomas said that although his efforts last year had been unprecedented, the people in Canada were going to exceed them. They were looking forward with confidence to a total of $100,000,000 from 1,000,000 subscribers, "and I am sure we will get it," he said amid applause.

"For this year we have the advantage of starting earlier and our organization from the Atlantic to the Pacific is very much better—not personally—but in the sense that there has been more time to get efficient working order, and of course, we will profit by the experience gained last year." A tribute was paid by Sir Thomas to the extraordinary keenness and enthusiasm of the organizers engaged in the work this year.

The minister related to the wonderful effort of "our august mother overseas" and her achievements, was frequently punctuated with resounding applause, and he went on to relate how Lloyd George had stated that the Canadian forces had saved Calais in 1916. He had been specially struck in connection with this when last year he crossed from Folkestone to Boulogne. Mr. Germany had not Calais in 1915," he said, "the whole course of the war might have been changed. Theoretically they did, but the Canadians are not theoretical soldiers," he added, amid applause, "and although they went into battle and saved the day. On the testimony of professional soldiers," he said, "the Canadian corps at the front is probably the most efficient of any unit taking part in this war."

Eternal Credit
"It is to the eternal credit of Canada that the Canadian forces have taken the part they have in this war," he said. "We can hold our heads up high by reason of what they have done and what they have suffered. From the beginning they have fought victoriously. The Hindenburg line was broken, and that Hindenburg line was broken upon it as his own (laughter)—and so right down to the full retreat of the enemy."

Sir Thomas here read a message he had received from Sir Arthur Currie, commander-in-chief of the Victory Loan which aroused much enthusiasm. This expressed the faith of the men at the front in the people at home and in the success of the forthcoming campaign. The minister also read his reply to Gen. Currie, in which he said the inspiring message would appeal to the people of this country, and expressing his hearty congratulations at the time the Canadians under their leadership, ending "May God bless and keep you all."

Continuing, Sir Thomas referred to the tremendous undertaking in the Victory Loan in Europe. Of the 500,000 men as Canada's quota, 400,000 had gone overseas, and that had been from a country as large as the United States, but with a population of eight millions, and a people of mixed nationality. That was a tremendous effort for Canada to put forth. He said, "I need not overlook the fact that these soldiers were not fighting for their own country's frontier, but thousands of miles from home. Thus Canada's effort was not confined to raising an army of 500,000, but to equipping it and sending it thousands of miles away. "Up to date Canada has spent $1,000,000,000 on the war," he said, "and the present expenditure is over $1,000,000 a day."

Benefits of 1917 Loan
Sir Thomas here turned to the prosperity of Canada. "In view of the sacrifices made by those who have gone forth, one does not like to speak of material prosperity," he said, "but I have no hesitation in saying that we will be carrying out the war. And that is the property, has been directly caused by the Victory Loan of 1917; indeed," said the minister, "I have no hesitation in saying that had it not have been for the Victory Loan and its success, conditions in Canada today would be very different from what they are. If we had been unable to raise the money we did there would have been considerable depression in all parts of Canada, whether agricultural or otherwise."

In reviewing how the country had benefited by the loan, the minister referred to the shipbuilding of British Columbia at the present time. Every dollar paid by the Imperial Munitions Board for ships has been furnished by the Dominion government. "The shipbuilding industry," he said, "has been the most important industry in Canada that has come from the Victory Loan."

There was aeroplane construction in British Columbia had the finest spruce for that purpose in the world. Nine to ten million dollars had been expended in that direction. In the prairie provinces there was the wheat crop, and arrangements had been made whereby the exportable surplus was purchased at prices fixed by the wheat commissioners. The same also applied to the cheese of Ontario and to commodities of many basic industries. So that all over the country was to be found the beneficial effect of the last Victory Loan, he said. There was therefore a personal interest on the part of everyone in Canada to make the present Victory Loan a success. Although the crops in the three prairie provinces had not come up to their high expectations, after the effort that had been made in increased production, he felt assured that they would not only reach their quota, but would exceed their final contribution of last year.

Time Is Opportune
The minister of finance then turned his attention to the situation in Europe. The situation in regard to this year was excellent, and this could not be more favorable than at the present time. "It is difficult for us to visualize by any stretch of our imagination," said the speaker, "the extent of the realization of the momentous character of the situation last spring and the wonderful change that has been brought about in the last few months. There was a time in March and April of this year when the destiny of the empire and of the world hung in the balance. Russia had collapsed, and the Germans were able to withdraw their legions to the west. Their plan was one of the utmost daring. The whole history of the war. Their intention was to destroy the British in the channel and roll up the French towards Paris. They knew the Americans were arriving in larger numbers and they had to stake everything upon it as his own (laughter)—and so right down to the full retreat of the enemy."

"See Foch"
"Then the German peace overtures started," he said. "The situation in Europe. The situation in regard to this year was excellent, and this could not be more favorable than at the present time. No Time to Let Up

"Recent events have enhanced not lessened the importance of this loan and I hope that my fellow countrymen will let me say this to them very frankly; the very best thing that could happen would be that the loan should not only be fully subscribed but very greatly oversubscribed. We are in the middle of the greatest exercise of the power of this country that has ever been witnessed, or forecast, and a single day of relaxation in that effort would be of tragical damage alike to ourselves and to the rest of the world. Nothing has happened that makes it safe or possible to do anything but push our effort to the utmost. The time is critical and the answer must be complete.—President Wilson.

The momentous words of President Wilson are just as applicable to Canada's 1918 Victory Loan.

Precautions Against Influenza

1. The sick should be separated from the healthy. This is especially important in the case of first attacks in the household.
2. Discharges from the nose and mouth should not be allowed to get dry on a pocket handkerchief or inside the house, office or factory. They should at once be collected in paper or clean paper or clean rags and burned. If this cannot be done, they should be dropped into a vessel containing water.
3. Infected articles and rooms should be cleansed and disinfected. Use disinfectants everywhere. Wash the hands frequently.
4. Those attacked should not, on any account, mingle with other people for at least a period of ten days from the commencement of the attack. In severe cases, they should remain away from work for a longer period.
5. Special attention should be given to cleanliness and ventilation. Warm clothing should be worn, the feet should be kept dry and all unnecessary exposure avoided.

MONEY TO LOAN

Osler, Hammond and Nanton, general agents for North of Scotland and other Mortgage Companies have $300,000 invested in farm loans in the West, the returns from which they re-invest in the same way. They have lots of money now. Their inspector, Mr. Stickney, who was in the district a few days ago, says "They have barrels of money, and that no good loan will be refused." Let them renew the loan you have on your homestead, and give you more on your pre-emption, give you money to prove it up if you wish. Or let them give you a new loan, as large, and probably larger, than you can get elsewhere. The district needs all the money we can get hold of in this way. Pay up your indebtedness to the bank, to the municipality, to the school, and to others. We can furnish the money. Loans for five years, repayable in three years, without extra charge. Interest at 8 per cent.—nothing but the interest to pay each year.
